

FP: Topic Proposal

For my final project, I have decided to make a website about how computers have impacted many individuals. This topic is significant for me right now because everything about computers is very interesting to me. In my opinion, I found the history of computers to be very interesting and informative. Computers have been used by many people since the 19th century as a tool for solving increasingly complex mathematic problems. By the 20th century, computers became more complex and powerful. Many older computers have different designs than the computer designs that everyone else is familiar with. Many computers with operating systems like Windows, MacOS, and Linux have become increasingly popular and widely-used. When the internet was adopted by the general public, even more people started to use computers as part of their daily lives. A lot of schools and job opportunities involve computers being used in many different ways. Many job opportunities for computers include IT, sales representatives, and computer scientists. Computers can even help people work remotely. Entrepreneurs can use computers to help spread awareness of their products to a wider audience. People use computers for communication, homework, entertainment, and researching information. Smartphones are usually in the same category as computers because they are often used in tandem for the exact same purposes as them. I have used computers ever since I was younger. At the schools that I have attended, I have used many of them that were powered by both Windows and Mac operating systems. I have used computers to help me make contact with people, do schoolwork, and shopping. For me and everyone that I knew, they have made a huge impact on many people's lives. Nowadays, computers are a part of everyone's daily lives and everyone I know uses it. Computers and other devices that share the same components are very essential items for many people's jobs and personal lives.

The first person that I will interview for this project is my mother. She uses computers for both her job at an insurance company and at home. One of the questions that I will ask her for the final project interview is how computers have made a huge impact on her life. Another thing that I will ask her for the final project interview is her thoughts on how computers and other devices have played a huge role in everyone else's lives. The second person that I will interview for this project is my aunt. She also uses computers for both her job and at home. I will also ask her about how computers have made a huge impact on her life and her thoughts on how computers have played a huge role on other people's lives. The third person that I will interview for this project is my cousin. Just like my mother and aunt, she uses computers in her life as well. Also just like my mother and aunt, I am going to ask her about how computers have played a huge role in her life and her thoughts on how computers have played a huge role on other's lives. I am going to be interviewing these three people for my final project because I believe that computers have impacted their lives.

Between now and the end of the semester, I am hoping to learn more about how computers can have a huge impact on a lot of people's lives. As I mentioned before, computers are a part of everyone's daily lives nowadays and everyone I know uses it. A lot of schools and job opportunities have many different uses for computers. They are very essential items for many people's jobs and personal lives. They are very important for people to communicate with others, entertain themselves, research information, and many other activities. All of these activities are also used in other devices that fit under the category of a computer. I am also hoping to learn more about how an interview could help influence the content layout of the website for the final project. I have decided to make the interview questions consistent for each of the people that I am interviewing. The three people that I will interview will influence the content of this website. In conclusion, I am looking forward to hearing feedback from the people that I am interviewing and I'm very interested in working with this topic for the final project.
